EXECUTIVE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT
OFFICE OF SCIENCE AND TECHNOLOGY POLICY

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20506

January 25, 1984

Dear Mr. Coombs:

I have reviewed your letter of January 13, 1984 requesting my signature on the attached document as affirmation that the Australian Servicemen's Health Study is "epidemiologically sound and feasible and that its performance is scientifically desirable."

I fully appreciate your concern that the protocol is now finalized and that it is imperative for the study, if approved, be initiated immediately. My concern is not whether the protocol is epidemiologically sound (in my opinion it certainly is) nor whether its performance is scientifically desirable (in my opinion both of our nations will gain valuable information from this scientific study), rather my concern is with the word "feasible." The study is feasible only if the resources are committed. The commitment of resources to such a study is not one that should be made lightly. It will involve governmental priorities and political concerns. As an "outsider" I must not contribute to those deliberations.

I endorse the scientific validity of the protocol and recognize the importance of conducting, in a timely manner, health studies of veterans who served in Vietnam.

Sincerely,

Alvin L. Young

Dear Al,

Notwithstanding the participation of all members of the Scientific Advisory Panel in the finalisation of the protocol our masters require the attached confirmation of the agreement reached which I included in a letter to the appropriate Minister. Accordingly I would be obliged if you would return the attached document as a matter of extreme urgency.

Kind regards,

J. S. Coombs Q.C.

Attachment.

Dear Judge,

We the undersigned, members of your Scientific Advisory Panel, hereby confirm that we took part in a review and critique of a protocol for Australian Servicemens Health Study leading to its consolidation into the protocol dated 22 December, 1983.

We confirm our agreement that the study is epidemiologically sound and feasible and that its performance is scientifically desirable.

Yours sincerely,
